To Whom It My Concern:

Re: Erdreich White Fine Art

Ladies and Gentlemen:

The New York Offices of The Boston Consulting Group moved in 2002 to our new home on Park Avenue. We collaborated with a top-notch team of architects, designers, consultants, and contractors to make our space a reflection of whom and what we are. It was very important to us that our design concepts would be complimented by an equally thoughtful and thought-provoking art collection which could also stand the test of time.

Elizabeth showed us right from the beginning that she was all about partnering with her clients, completely sensitive to the tone and feeling of the surroundings and flow of business. She listened, heard, and guided. Elizabeth does not try to direct her clients to any particular artist, venue or piece; instead the client is autonomous in the selections, giving her expertise when needed. Elizabeth is passionate as well as practical; passionate about "good Art" and practical about budgets and corporate parameters.

Elizabeth has her own system of how to arrive at the right collection for client viewing – a process that worked well for us. She secured a sizeable collection of works for us to review. This allowed us to narrow down to the final selections. Her patience and understanding with the process from beginning to end was phenomenal. She has a great eye for spatial relations, conveying the right tones, and for finding the right locations for each piece.

In short, we immensely enjoyed working with Elizabeth. Her flexible and warm nature made the experience a rewarding one, as well as a tangibly beautiful one. We have had scores of positive comments on the collection – both from internal staff as well as guests and visitors. I strongly recommend that if you are thinking of acquiring or adding to your artwork collection that you think of having Elizabeth assist you.

Sincerely,
